> ollections Made Yesterday and Forwarded-The Dime Museum Benefit -John Jack's "Falstaff."

The citizens of Memphis have gone earnestly to work to aid in the relief of the sufferers by the great Galveston fire, and beside arranging several benefits, have raised by subscription over $1200. The following correspondence is self-explanatory:

DEAR SIR—The undersigned members of the committee appointed by the citizens of Memphis for the purpose of securing aid for the benefit of the recent sufferer by the late conflagration at Galveston, Tex., respectfully request that you permit the Firmin-Jack Comedy Company to occupy your theater on Friday evening next, at which time they will present the legitimate drams of Faistag, by a full company, for the beastiof the above named cause. Very respectfully, etc.:

THE WEATHER. Washington, 1 a.m., November 20, 1884. . T. Porter and Committee:

GENTLEMEN-Your communication received. I cheerfully donate the use of the Theater free of charge for Friday night, and will go still further. I will also donate the use for the Saturday matines for the same charitable purpose.

FRANK GRAY. The committee are authorized by the prompt kindness of Mr. Frank Gray to announce that tickets can be had and seats reserved this morning at Mulford's, and we hope to see a crowded house to manifest Memphis's sympathy for the suffering

D. T. PORTER, Chairman. John Jack as "Faistaff." The APPEAL, on behalf of the Galgeston sufferers, hopes that the Memphis Theater will be crowded as it has never been crowded before. The money spent for tickets will not be regretted. That the entertainment will be a good one cannot entertainment will be a good one cannot be doubted by those who are familiar with the reputation Mr. Jack has made all over the United States as "Felstaff." Many remember him in that admirable role fiteen years go. The company is a creditable one, and that they will do their level best cannot be doubted.

the most famous and lovely pictures of the divine Mother and Child. There is a touching little sketch by M. Burty of the French painter, Leon Bonvin, a sensitive and unhappy man of genius, whose short life was a struggle against all that was sordid and cruel, and whose courage at last gave way in suicide. The illustrations which accompany this article are charmingly executed, giving in the black and white, to a surprising degree, the delicate, ideal grace of Bonvin's creations. CAPT. BLACK INDORSES MS. HADDEN.

Capt. Black was discovered on Main street in the act of bowing, in that captivating way he has, to some of his numerous lady friends. He was informed of the fact that his name had been mentioned as a candidate for president of the Police and Fire Commissioners, and answered with a laugh which might might have meant yes or no.

"Then it is not news to you?" the Appeal man asid.

"Well, no, yes—that is I have heard of it. I heard it to-day, I believe?"
